Subject: OIG Reports 11-5 and 11-6
Status of Basic Agency Grants

Enclosed are our summary reports dealing with the status of basic agency administered grants. The reports pertain to follow-up actions to determine the status of these grants and potential for grant closing and de-obligations where appropriate.

OPEN BASIC AGENCY GRANTS WITH LIMITED ACTIVITY AND FUND BALANCES

OIG Report 11-5

July 15, 2011

BACKGROUND

ARC initiated an assessment of open grants, including Basic Agency grants, in order to identify and follow-up on the status of these grants and identify grants subject to closing and potential de-obligations that would permit better use of funds. We support this initiative and this report highlights grants approved prior to 2009 for which ARC records reflect unused balances and limited activity over a substantial time period.

ARC approves grants for economic development projects in the Appalachian Region and, by law, relies on other Federal Agencies (Basic Agencies) with construction expertise, to administer, manage, and monitor construction related grants, and projects. Cooperation and coordination between ARC and Basic Agencies is an important program element and the Basic Agencies are responsible for providing ARC with project status reports, including information for grant close out when projects are completed.

RESULTS

Our review of information available on the ARC Net as of June 16, 2011, confirmed timely ARC monitoring and follow-up on ARC administered grants to identify grants subject to closing, including de-obligations and grants requiring performance extensions. For basic agency grants, 129 open grants with fund balances totaling $27,275,326 that were approved prior to 2009 were identified.

This included 50 grants with reported funds balances of $16,419,910 where no approved funds were noted as expended and 79 grants with partial expenditures, for which balances totaled $10,855,419, including 19 instances where less than 50% of funds were expended.

ARC Net also noted that in most cases, especially as respects grants for which no expenditures were noted, that lengthy periods had elapsed since the last transaction date. The age of the grants and the elapsed transaction dates provide indicators of the potential for grant closings based on the applicable projects being completed or the projects not being started, and related de-obligations.

Thus, primary emphasis should be placed on older grants with reported balances. Additionally, increased emphasis should be placed on timely ARC follow-up actions with respect to basic agency grants to determine the status of grants and applicable actions. Program guidance specifying project manager responsibilities and controls such as periodic follow-up should be implemented and automatic requests for status reports when lengthy transaction lapses or late Basic Agency reporting reach specified time limits should be considered.

Basic agency grants do not identify estimated expiration or completion dates for the projects. We recognize that time frames for construction related projects can vary substantially but believe that estimated expiration/completion dates, which can be extended, based on reasonable justifications, are a good management tool, and would provide a basis for follow-up when estimated dates pass without significant project activity. Thus, ARC should coordinate with Basic Agency contacts about inclusion of estimated end dates in grant agreements.

The attachments summarize and identify the information noted. We recognize that ongoing ARC follow-up may have resulted in actions on some of the grants noted. We will also provide the attached listings to the applicable Basic Agency and our recommendations for coordination and cooperation in connection with ARC's assessment of open grants.
