

APPALACHIAN REGIONAL COMMISSION
County Economic Status Designations in the Appalachian Region,
Fiscal Year 2006

Introduction

ARC uses a county economic classification system to target counties in need of special economic assistance. The system classifies counties into five economic status designations—distressed, at-risk, transitional, competitive, and attainment—based on a comparison of county and national averages for three economic indicators: three-year average unemployment rate, per capita market income, and poverty rate. A description of each economic level is provided in Table 1 and in the text below. Each fiscal year, using the most current data available, ARC determines each Appalachian county’s economic status designation based on thresholds established for each level. The county’s designation is then used in the distribution of funds for the fiscal year. The FY 2006 economic status designations for Appalachian counties are presented in this report.

Table 1: Appalachian Regional Commission County Economic Status Classification System, FY 2006

County Economic Level	County Economic Indicator Thresholds			Alternate Criteria
	Three-Year Average Unemployment Rate	Per Capita Market Income	Poverty Rate
Distressed	150% or more of U.S. average	67% or less of U.S. average	150% or more of U.S. average	At least twice the U.S. poverty rate and meets the threshold of one other distressed-level indicator.
At-Risk	125% or more of U.S. average	67% or less of U.S. average	125% or more of U.S. average	Meets the threshold of two of the three distressed-level indicators.
Transitional	All counties that are worse than the national average for one or more indicator but do not meet the criteria for the distressed or at-risk levels.
Competitive	100% or less of U.S. average	80% or more of U.S. average	100% or less of U.S. average
Attainment	100% or less of U.S. average	100% or more of U.S. average	100% or less of U.S. average

County Economic Levels

Distressed

Distressed counties are the most economically depressed counties. These counties have three-year average unemployment rates at least 1.5 times the national average, per capita market income no greater than two-thirds of the national average, and poverty rates at least 1.5 times the national average; OR they have at least twice the national poverty rate and meet the criteria for either the unemployment or the income indicator.

At-Risk

At-risk counties are counties at risk of becoming economically distressed. These counties have three-year average unemployment rates at least 1.25 times the national average, per capita market income no greater than two-thirds of the national average, and poverty rates at least 1.25 times the national average; OR they meet the criteria for two of the three distressed-level indicators. This economic level was adopted in fiscal year 2006 for the purpose of monitoring economic change and planning for investments in potentially distressed counties.

Transitional

Transitional counties have rates worse than the national average for one or more of the three economic indicators (three-year average unemployment, per capita market income, and poverty) but do not meet the criteria for the distressed or at-risk levels.

Competitive

Competitive counties have three-year average unemployment rates and poverty rates equal to or better than the national average, and per capita market income equal to or greater than 80 percent, but less than 100 percent, of the national average.

Attainment

Attainment counties have economic indicators (three-year average unemployment, per capita market income, and poverty) equal to or better than the national averages.

Counties in each Economic Level

Below is list of the counties in each economic level for FY 2006. Summary counts for each state and for the Region as a whole are provided in Table 2. For the detailed economic indicator data used to determine each county's designation, see Appendix 1. Map 1 shows the geographic distribution of the county economic designations.

County Economic Status in Appalachia, Fiscal Year 2006

(Effective October 1, 2005 through September 30, 2006)

Each fiscal year the Appalachian Regional Commission classifies the Region's counties into one of five economic levels based on a comparison of county and national rates for three economic indicators: three-year average unemployment rates, per-capita market income rates, and poverty rates. See the reverse side for a description of each economic level.

County Economic Levels

- Distressed (77)
- At-Risk (81)
- Transitional (222)
- Competitive (22)
- Attainment (8)
